RAILROAD REVOLUTION

Since the development of the steam locomotive, there have been gradual advances in speed, comfort, dependability, efficiency. But no railroad revolution took place. Then, overnight, as it were, we are witnessing revolutionary railroad changes.

The Union Pacific, long a pioneer in railroad opening up new territories and knitting the country closer together, has again led the way. It has produced a streamlined train which marks the greatest step forward in rail travel since the locomotive. Made of aluminum, the train has a top speed of 110 miles an hour. It is air-conditioned and comes close to being silent. Interior furnishings are luxurious. Riding qualities are unexcelled. It is, literally, a cigar-shaped bullet on wheels—with every safety factor built into it. It will revolutionize railroading.

The type of vision that produced such a train as this made the railroad industry great in the beginning by harnessing deserts, roving rivers and mountains with bands of steel laid through a savage wilderness to connect the two oceans. There has been no let-down of the quality of railroad management in spite of years of the most discouraging experiences—years in which they have been over-regulated, over-taxed, and have had to face subsidized and privileged competition.

The faith of our people in the railroads is enabling them to come back and give the finest, the fastest, the safest land transportation in this world—Industrial News Review.

DOLLARS IN YOUR POCKET

A cheering report has just been issued by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. The estimated fire loss for the first three months of 1934 was $90,758,000 as compared with $107,530,000 in the same period last year—a drop of close to 15 per cent.

That makes it look as if the American people are really beginning to regard fire waste as being the unnecessary tragedy that it is. During the past few years there have been declines in the dollar total—but that has been principally due to declines in property values, and not to fewer fires. This year, however, property values are somewhat above the 1933 level—so the three-month decline really means something.

If even a 15 per cent reduction can be achieved this year, it will mean the saving of many lives. It will mean that property worth about $60,000,000 has been preserved to serve a useful purpose. It will mean that many men will keep jobs that would disappear if fire damaged or destroyed the factories and plants where they work. It will mean that taxes will be lower than they would be otherwise—every fire which destroys taxable property of any kind causes the lost taxes to be placed on other property in the community.

POWER AND CIGARETTES

Which is more important to the industries and homes of the nation—tobacco or electric power? Which is the greater "civilizing" influence? Which does the most to make the life of the average person pleasant and comfortable, and to increase the amount of leisure time he has?

If that questionnaire were sent to a representative group of citizens, electricity would win by an overwhelming vote. Yet—based on statistics for 1932—the nation's tobacco bill is well over a $100,000,000 in excess of its domestic power bill. We spent close to $600,000,000 in that year for cigarettes and cigars, and we spent but $700,000,000 for the current that provided us with light, operated stoves and refrigerators and washing machines, and performed cheaply, efficiently, swiftly—a thousand and one other necessary household tasks.

That little comparison serves to indicate what a big money's worth electric power is. No dollar the average family spends brings more that is genuinely worth while—none buys so much convenience and efficiency and freedom from drudgery. It is always a bargain—and the work of the private electric utilities, in lowering the cost to the consumer in the face of rising operating expenses, has made it so.

The electric bill per day of the average home runs around the price of a pack of cigarettes or a glass of beer, or a magazine. Think of that the next time it is proposed to spend some more of the taxpayers' money—your money—to put government, whether federal, state or local, into the electric business. —Industrial News Review.

When the sage of old said, "Tis an ill wind that blows nobody good," he didn't know anything about saxophone players.

No matter whether the government is a democracy, a monarchy or an autocracy, the people have to pay for the mistakes of the rulers.

BUILDS FARM HOME WITH RELIEF FUNDS

The wise use of money earned while employed by the Civil Works Administration resulted in a home for James (Shine) Dickerson, of Portia, Mrs. Dickerson was one of the many unemployed who were given work by the CWA during the past winter and early spring. At the time he was given employment he had no home. With a home in mind as his goal, Shine assisted others with ditching and road work about in the county. Mrs. W. J. Williams, mother-in-law of Mr. Dickerson, gave him the land and timber. Shine saved money enough from his weekly pay check to have the timber sawed and to pay for the labor and other expenses in building a house near Portia. Although the house only has two rooms at the present, it was planned so that additional rooms may be added from time to time.

Mr. Dickerson states that the home is not a mansion, but that it is really a home to him and his wife and six children.

Georgia Bishop Closes 59-Year Church Service

(By Georgia Newspaper Alliance)
Promoting his last benediction as an active bishop in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, Bishop Warren A. Canfield, of Atlanta, brought to a close his ministry of 59 years at the general conference of that church in Jackson, Miss. He had been a bishop for the past 25 years, and retired along with Bishops Collins Denny, of Richmond and H. M. Dabose, of Nashville, because of the 72-year limit recently set.

With prominent Methodists from all over the South assembled at the Jackson conference, Bishop Canfield led in singing the hymn, "My Latest Sun is Sinking Fast, My Race is Nearly Run." The tears streamed down his cheeks as the congregation joined in the hymn and the aged churchman's fellow bishops wrapped their arms about the Atlanta veteran of Methodism and wept.

Bishop Canfield's parting admonition was "take care of this Methodist Church." The remark was construed as a mandate against unification of American Methodism, to which the southern church is aspiring with other branches.

Took CARDUI During The Change of Life

Cardui is purely vegetable, harmless, for women of all ages. Many women who have used it tell their daughters and friends to try it. "I took Cardui for weakness and dizziness," said Mrs. J. M. Allen, of Elmfield, Ill. "It helped me and built up my strength. I am now healthy and my children and they were helped. I think Cardui is a good medicine for women." Mrs. J. M. LAP-LINKS

(By REV. C. M. LIPHAM, in Atlanta Journal)

Dear Old Man People:

"And don't forget to take along some lap links"—that was the last word Old Peg Leg used to say to me. I am a high-floater and I have been for the long weary bottoms of the sun began to peep in the east. The effectiveness of the day's work so often depended on the lap links.

Teachers College Training School

The summer session of South Georgia Teachers College training school opens June 11th.

Children must register within the next two weeks. A limited number of children will be enrolled. There will be three groups of children, primary, lower elementary and upper elementary grades. Work will begin in August and close at 1:30 p. m. A recreation period will come at 10:30. At this time the pool will be used exclusively for the children. Life guards and instructors of swimming will be present for the benefit of all pupils. Everything possible will be done to enrich the experiences of the children who attend the training school. Although no attempt will be made to have children make up work failed in regular session, an effort will be made to help pupils to overcome special handicaps.

The training school children will be used to some extent in classroom, demonstrating certain methods and techniques, but the child's immediate interests will be of first concern in everything that it does.

Parents in Statesboro are invited to enroll their children for these advantages. No fees are charged. Children will be required to purchase a small amount of material. This material will not cost more than one dollar. Those desiring to register children for this summer session may communicate now with W. L. Downs, director of training school, (17may24)

HOME LOAN PLANS GIVEN WIDE SCOPE

FUNDS AVAILABLE FOR REDEMPTION OF HOMES LOST SINCE JANUARY, 1930.

The number of potential beneficiaries of refinancing by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation is widened by a clause in the newly amended act which provides for loans for the recovery of homes lost by foreclosure at any time since January 1, 1930, according to a statement by the corporation yesterday. Previously, redemptions permitted were confined to homes lost within two years prior to the closing of the loan. Recovery of homes is now possible for persons who lost them in 1930, 1931 and early 1932, providing the consent and cooperation of the present owners of the properties is obtained.

The recovery section of the act reads as follows:

"The corporation is further authorized to exchange bonds and to advance cash to redeem or recover homes lost by the owners by foreclosure or forced sale by a trustee under a deed of trust or under power of attorney, or by voluntary surrender to the mortgagee subsequent to January 1, 1930, subject to the limitations provided in subsection (d) of this section."

A home eligible for a loan under the act may be recovered for the owner who lost it, but for no one else. The corporation is not even authorized to recover such properties for some other member of the same family. If the original owner has judgments or other liens against him, in existence June 13, 1933, and which would attach to the property upon recovery, it will be necessary to arrange the transaction so that the corporation can have a first lien.

In some cases the applicant may be able to make a settlement with his creditors; in other cases the creditors may consent to subordinate their claims; in all cases the corporation must secure a first lien. The refunding is not to be closed where excess indebtedness exists, unless such indebtedness is arranged so that the home owner will have a reasonable probability of being able to carry the loan together with his obligation to the corporation.

After a statutory redemption period has expired and in all cases where the home is completely lost to the owner, the corporation can proceed only under the act which provides that bonds only may be exchanged for the debts against the home.

When a home is being repossessed for the original owner the corporation may advance to the holder of the home, whether he is the original mortgagee or not, an amount in bonds equivalent to the total amount invested in the property in good faith, provided this, together with the incidental cash for taxes, maintenance, etc., does not exceed 80 percent of the corporation's appraisal of the property.
